Field of the Invention The present invention relates generally to data processing systems and, more particularly, to a system and method for processing variable length data. 2. Description of the Prior Art Several problems arise when processing variable length data (VLDB) with packed array instructions. One problem arises from the fact that the length of the data may not be known until after the instruction is decoded. In the case of fixed length instructions, such as the load instructions (LDR, STR, etc.), the length field is not needed. However, in the case of variable length instructions, the length must be determined in the decode and the length must be stored in the instruction (e.g., LDR or STR). If the length is stored in the instruction, it may result in a long instruction length which limits the width
