This the solution for this puzzle. Although the cross hatched area is a plane, it could be any plane. But for this puzzle, the solution for this puzzle is: the puzzle does not fit the standard cube-based square puzzles! If this puzzle were created under the standards used for the square cube puzzle, the solutions would be as follows: F I F V F L T C The cube-based square grid puzzle is the subset of the small box, medium box and large box puzzles. This puzzle is the smallest cube based square puzzle. You can also solve this with a

6-piece puzzle, but with a cube this puzzle looks like a small box. The small box is the easiest puzzle to solve. It looks like this: One side of the box is missing. To solve this you have to remove the missing piece. Once it is removed, the missing piece is indicated by the line of numbers on the missing side. The remaining three puzzle
